

EXPECT VERDICT TODAY
IN BOOKMAKING CASE

What constitutes gambling, setting up a gaming table, bookmaking, betting, and any other form of getting rid of one's money either by chance, speculation, or certainty is being argued in every detail before a jury in Justice Suddens' court today in the case of Frank McCormick and Samuel Rappaport, who are being tried for making handbooks on horse races. The case has been on trial for a week, and it is expected there will be a verdict late this afternoon.

It has been the contention of Attorneys Daniel Thew Wright and James A. O'Shea, who represent the accused, that they did not "make book" within the meaning of the term.

PRESIDENT EBERT
NAMES CABINET

WEIMAR, Feb. 12, via London, Feb. 13.—Philip Scheidemann will be the first premier of Germany under President Ebert. Gustave Noske, former minister of demobilization and before that governor of Kiel, has been appointed minister of army and navy. Other members of the cabinet follow: Minister of interior, Herr Preuss; minister of justice, Herr Sandberg; minister of commerce, Herr Müller; minister of labor, Herr Bauer; minister of posts and telegraphs, Herr Geisberg; ministers without portfolio, Dr. Matthias Erzberger, armistice commissioner, former state secretary and leader of the Centrist party; Eduard David, president of the national assembly, and Herr Wissel.

The above cablegram indicated that Herr Scheidemann had not yet been actually appointed. An Exchange Telegraph dispatch to the International News Service from Amsterdam today said that Scheidemann's appointment had formally taken place.

Scheidemann will not participate in the peace negotiations. It is likely, however, that Mr. David will be a German envoy.

Mrs. Pollock was formerly Miss Agnes Messick.

Plan Authors' Ball.

Plans are being completed for the authors' carnival and ball to be given by the League of American Penwomen on Friday evening at the Willard to raise funds for the establishment of a permanent home for women writers in Washington.

Only a limited number of boxes have been sold, as the decorations of the ballroom, which are representations of books in posters and living tableaux, have taken up the greater part of the room. Among the box holders are Mrs. E. T. Stotbury; Mrs. Thomas H. Logan; Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth; Mrs. F. Berger Moran; Mrs. C. B. Wood; Mrs. Lutz Anderson; Mrs. M. T. Scott; Mrs. Perry Belmont; Mrs. Wesley G. Merritt; Mrs. Frank Letts; Mrs. Axel Wickfield; and Mrs. George T. Mayne. The honor box will be kept at the Literary people who are coming to Washington especially for this benefit. Among them will be Miss Fannie Hurst, Lillian Lauerly, Cora Harris, Theodosia Garrison, Miss Mary White Slater, and others. Miss Lenora Sparks, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is coming from New York to sing.

The floor committee for the ball is headed by Rear Admiral C. J. Peoples, U. S. N. The vice chairman are Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, Thomas Bell Swetley, Walter D. Denogre, and the aids, Horace H. Westcott, Col. E. L. Gruber, A. S. Gardner, Capt. Henry V. Butler, U. S. N.; Col. F. E. Weiss, U. S. A.; Capt. C. C. Bloch, U. S. N.; Capt. Hayne Ellis, U. S. N.; Col. R. E. Lee, U. S. A.; Commander J. A. Furer, U. S. N.; Lieut. E. A. Howell, U. S. N.; and Lieut. W. R. Ryan, U. S. N.

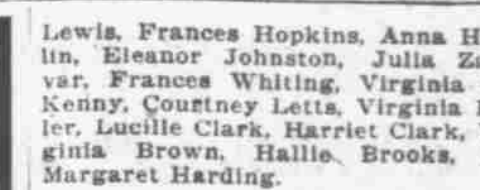

The young ladies' committee is headed by Miss Gertrude Drain, who will be assisted by Miss Mary Heiden and Miss Lelia Gordon. Others on the committee are the Misses Mildred Brownell, Margaret Simonds, Marjorie Brown, Henrietta Hill, Pamela Harry, Elizabeth Engster, Margaret Stinson, Polly Brooks, Susan Lewis, Frances Hopkins, Anna Hamilton, Eleanor Johnston, Julia Zaldívar, Frances Whiting, Virginia McKenny, Courtney Letts, Virginia Pullock, Lucille Clark, Harriet Clark, Virginia Brown, Hallie Brooks, and Margaret Harding.

In Literary Atmosphere. The moment the guests leave the elevators they will find themselves in a literary atmosphere, the ante room being metamorphosed to represent scenes from "Vanity Fair" and from "Beau Brummel." Before entering the ball room the spectators will pass through Dickens' Blue Boar Inn, where refreshments will be served during the evening and drinks passed out over a real bar, the once famous bar of the Willard Hotel. Pretty braided maids will dispense drinks.

On entering the ball room the guests will find themselves back in the days of the American Civil War. Mr. Pearson, president of the league, will take the part of Queen Scherezade, the story teller of the thousand and one tales. Tableaux from sixteen popular books will be staged in the niches between the boxes around the ball room. Among the books represented by these living tableaux are "The American Interlude," "Tom Sawyer," "Paris," "The Little Lord Rubiyat," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Old Creole Days," "Dear Folks at Home," "Hiawatha," "The Little Minister," "The Heart of the Matter," "The Wiggles of the Cabbage Patch," "Madame Butterfly," "Cave of the Spider," and "Col. Carter of Cartersville."

The posters representing these books were made by the Camouflage section of the Fortieth Engineers, by special permission of Major Braden. These men are the leading artists and illustrators of the country.

Each guest at the ball is requested to appear in the costume of some great character of literature. He will mingle the heroes and heroines of Shakespeare, Scott, Tennyson, and the modern characters of our popular writers. At 10 o'clock there will be a grand march of all those in costume. The march will be led by Literature, Music, and Art, played by Miss Margery Day, Miss Katherine Stichtel, and Miss Olga Plisen. They will pass before Service. This symbolic character will be portrayed by Miss Nancy Miley. The march will portray the progress of literature from the days of the ancients to the light of civilization. A most unusual and varied entertainment will be given during the evening. Miss Lenora Sparks, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will come from New York to sing. There will be a special dance by Miss Mimi Pincoff, of the French Opera Company, and Sergeant S. A. Spurr.

MRS. J. W. WADSWORTH, JR., Who will give a reading from the poems of her illustrious father, the late John Hay, on Saturday afternoon at the matinee carnival to be given by the League of American Penwomen.
